ACURA INTRODUCES 1994 MODELS

2-2-2-2

The two-seat, all-aluminum NSX sports car offers the performance and styling of a mid-engine exotic, but with the Acura reputation for reliability and quality. The 1994 NSX sports car features newly designed, larger-diameter wheels and wider, lower aspect ratio tires, giving the 1994 NSX an even more aggressive stance on the road than ever before. The NSX also features refined transmission gears for quieter operation.

The 1994 NSX comes in a new exterior color, Brooklands Green, in addition to Grand Prix White, Formula Red, and Berlina Black. A choice of either a black or a newly introduced tan leather interior is available.

A new top-of-the-line Legend Sedan GS model is a new addition to the 1994 Legend series of luxury automobiles.

The new Legend Sedan GS gets the same high-performance 230-horsepower Type II engine as the Legend Coupe and is available with either a 6-speed manual or 4-speed automatic transmission. The Sedan GS also features a Traction Control System (TCS), sport suspension, 16" wheels with all season high-performance tires, dual piston front brake calipers and a body-colored grille.

For 1994, both the Legend Sedan and Legend Coupe have been subtly restyled with redesigned grilles, front bumpers and front air intakes. Also in 1994, both Legend Coupe models feature a new high-mount brakelight integrated into the rear trunk lid, while the LS contains a new body-colored chin spoiler, side sill and rear bumper skirt.

All 1994 Legend models feature a new power tilt and telescopic steering system with tilt up and memory functions that operate in conjunction with the 8-way memory-equipped power driver's seat. Additional sound insulation in all 1994 Legends ensures quiet operation.
